My favourite quotation is "Nibble, nibble, little mouse. Who is nibbling at my house?" (p. 3). The witch uses these words when the children eat from her house. I like this quotation because it rhymes and it sounds funny.

The two new words I chose and which I want to remember are "windowpane" and "wicked". A "windowpane" is a single whole piece of glass in a window. In this story Grettel eats a windowpane made of sugar. The word "wicked" means very bad and it is used for the witch, but the stepmother is also wicked.
